In normal, pre-pandemic times, mothers have always had to perform several jobs. Over the past year, though, those jobs have multiplied as working from home, home schooling and reduction of after school activities put more family together time/responsibility on parents. So, while mothers should look forward to spending Mother's Day celebrating with and being appreciated by the family, they could also use some time on their own; a survey of 500 mothers on Today.com revealed that a majority of respondents wished for just that. These hotels can offer it along with some extra nurturing in either overnights or longer stays.

Uptown, another luxe New York hotel, The Mark, is offering “Do Not Disturb: Mother’s Day at the Mark” including blinis, caviar and a Bellini from the hotel’s chef Jean-Georges Vongerichten upon arrival. A 60 minute in suite massage follows along with gifts of a yoga mat, cucumber eye pads, a Mark bathrobe (monogrammed if reserved five days in advance) and a blowout at the hotel’s Frederic Fekkai salon. (A manicure and pedicure can be added for an extra charge.) Available Mother’s Day weekend, May 7-9.
