

With roughly 100 five-star hotels in New York City alone, the USA has long been regarded as a pioneer when it comes to luxury hospitality. A vast country home to the full spectrum of climates and landscapes, it is also undeniably a top holiday destination, whether your ideal break means strolling the streets of the romanticised city of New York or the beaches of the Sunshine State of Florida, exploring the Californian winelands of Napa Valley or the red rocks of Utah – the possibilities are truly endless.

But while there are plenty of five-star hotels to choose from, a handful are reserved for only the most well-heeled. If you're willing to drop more than a grand on a night at one of the USA's best hotels, you've come to the right place. Step inside the most expensive hotels in the States below.

THE MARK

THE MARK, NEW YORK CITY

If The Mark's penthouse is good enough for Meghan Markle's baby shower, then it's good enough for us – and, at roughly $100,000 per night, so it should be. Chosen by the Duchess of Sussex thanks to its reputation as the place to be seen for those who 'don't want to be seen', The Mark makes one big exception to this rule: coming alive at the beginning of May as the official pre-party spot for those heading to the Met Gala, with the likes of Kim Kardashian, Gigi and Bella Hadid and Anna Wintour all opting to don their glad rags here.

The Upper East Side hotel dates back to 1927, and interiors nod to the Art Deco era, combining monochrome tiles with neutral tones and gold accents. Once again, celeb-spotting is best done at its restaurants and bars. Caviar Kaspia, designed by Jacques Grange, offers signature dishes including the legendary twice baked potato with caviar, while The Mark Restaurant by lauded French chef Jean-Georges Vongerichten blends New York classics with plant-forward flair on a menu of wood-fired pizzas, prime steaks, seafood platters and salads you absolutely won't turn your nose up at. Just steps away from Central Park and some of the world's finest museums, galleries, and boutiques, this is the ultimate luxury hotel in New York City.

From £1,222 per night.
